

Postgraduate course in Medical Response to Major Incidents MRMI trauma & mass-casualty incidents organized in collaboration between the European Society for Trauma & Emergency Surgery (ESTES), Karolinska University Hospital and Oslo University Hospital

Time: April 27-29, 2022 (Instructor training April 26 - 29)

Location: Oslo University Hospital, Ullevål, Norway

Course Director: Carl Montán (carl.montan@regionstockholm.se)

Design of the course

The course is based on the advanced simulation model (www.macsim.se) training the whole chain of response to Major Incidents such as Mass-Casualty Incidents: Scene, transport, hospitals, coordination & command, including also training in triage and individual patient-management and with participation of collaborating agencies like rescue service, police and protection agencies. It is totally interactive, starting with one day of preparative training in groups, followed by two full days of simulation exercises with all participants active in their normal positions and with careful evaluation and analysis of the result of the response. The course has special focus on physical trauma after terrorist attacks or military conflicts.

This requires a distribution of participants in accordance with the roles during the simulation exercise. In the standardized application form, the applicant has to indicate his/her preference and competence for the different roles and this may be used in the composition of participants.

Instructor training

Instructor training is offered for a limited number of participants who previously have passed a basic course and/or have specific qualifications meriting for instructor training.
